Why it made today's top five

- Director-level title reporting to the CEO and Chief Relationship Officer, owning the whole marketing function (leadership track)
- Preferred skills he has: HubSpot Inbound certification, videography and photography (Charter One, GCE, Lightbox), and graphic design (Photoshop, Canva)
- Master's in Marketing with the Marketing Analytics specialization, plus the Google Digital Marketing & E-Commerce cert, match the KPI, ROI and reporting duties
- Lightbox ownership covers local lead generation: Facebook ads, call-to-action buttons tied to the Facebook pixel, Google Business optimization and a 5.0-star review year
- Family-facing, mission-driven messaging experience: GCE healthcare content, plus Charter One enrollment campaigns (200% higher click-through, 20x engagement)
- Vendor and stakeholder coordination: directed crews of 5-20, synced departments with competing interests, delivered 98% of projects on time

Gaps to be ready for

- Google Ads, PPC, SEO and SEM hands-on: his paid experience is Meta (partly offset because vendors do the execution and he would hold them accountable)
- No law-firm, legal or behavioral-health marketing experience (GCE healthcare content is adjacent)
- The posting asks for a strong understanding of referral-based and B2B marketing; his closest is realtor and home-builder relationships at Lightbox
- Website strategy and user-experience work: no web development background
- Email campaign copy is listed; Klaviyo and Mailchimp hands-on is a known gap (HubSpot cert is adjacent)
- Remote eligibility for an Arizona resident is not stated; confirm before investing in the application
- Range starts at $75k, below the $76k floor (midpoint passes)

COMPANY RESEARCH

I could not research employee reviews for Robinson and Casey, PLLC in this run. The shared web search budget for this turn (200 searches across all agents) ran out before my first query, and the Indeed connector failed to connect (rate-limited, error -32429). Because of that, Glassdoor, Indeed, and Reddit were never searched. The "found=false" values below mean "not checked," not "confirmed to have no reviews." The one thing I could confirm is the job listing itself. ZipRecruiter shows "Director Of Marketing Strategy" at Robinson and Casey, PLLC in Boca Raton, Florida. It was posted 16 days ago, lists a pay range of $67,900 to $124,800 a year, and is labeled "Full-time · On-site." ZipRecruiter gives no description text, and the same job did not appear on Dice, so I have no full posting. "PLLC" means professional limited liability company. Florida uses that structure for licensed professional practices such as law and accounting firms. I could not confirm which kind of practice this firm is, how big it is, or what its marketing team looks like.

Glassdoor

Not searched. The web search budget for this turn was used up before any query ran, and glassdoor.com cannot be opened directly from here. There is no rating or review count to report. This does not show that the firm has no Glassdoor page.

Indeed reviews

Not checked. The Indeed connector failed to connect (rate-limited, -32429), so get_company_data could not run, and web search was also used up. There is no rating to report.

Reddit

Not searched because the web search budget ran out, and reddit.com cannot be opened directly from here. No threads were found or reviewed. Small professional practices often have no Reddit discussion at all, but that was not confirmed in this run.

WHAT EMPLOYEES SAY: PROS AND CONS

Pros

- The listing posts a pay range ($67,900 to $124,800 a year) and says the job is full-time. That gives a starting number for salary talks. Firms this size often post no pay range at all. [1]
- The posting is recent (16 days old as of 2026-10-14), so the role is probably still open. [1]

Cons

- ZipRecruiter labels the job "Full-time · On-site" in Boca Raton, with is_remote set to false. That conflicts with the "remote" label in Joshua's target listing. Confirm the work arrangement before putting time into this application. [1]
- The bottom of the pay range ($67,900) is low for a director title. The range is also wide (about $57,000 from bottom to top). The firm may not have settled on the level of the role, or the title may be bigger than the actual job. [1]
- No full job description was available. ZipRecruiter results carry no description text, and the same job did not come up in a Dice search filtered to this company. Scope, reporting line, team size, and benefits are unknown. ZipRecruiter's benefits field for this listing is empty (null). [1]

Watch for

- Remote versus on-site: ZipRecruiter lists this job as on-site in Boca Raton, not remote. Ask the recruiter directly whether it is remote, hybrid, or in-office, and get the answer in writing.
- Employee reviews were not checked because web search ran out and the Indeed connector was down. Before an interview, search Glassdoor, Indeed company reviews, and Reddit for the firm. A small firm may have few or no reviews, so treat a handful of reviews as a small sample.
- Pay range of $67,900 to $124,800 for a director title: ask where the budget sits for this role, and whether there is a bonus or a tie to the firm's revenue.
- Ask whether this is the firm's first marketing hire or a replacement. If it is a replacement, ask why the last person left. That speaks to churn, which could not be checked here.
- Ask who the role reports to (managing partner or an operations lead), how big the marketing budget is, and whether there is any staff or agency support. A director title at a small practice is often a one-person department.
- Confirm the firm's legal status and principals on the Florida Division of Corporations site (sunbiz.org), since no outside source verified the company in this run.

Bottom line

There was not enough evidence to judge what it is like to work here. Web search ran out and Indeed was down, so Glassdoor, Indeed, and Reddit went unchecked. Only the ZipRecruiter listing was confirmed. It says the job is on-site in Boca Raton, not remote, and pays $67,900 to $124,800. Before applying, Joshua should confirm the remote status, because the listing contradicts it. He should also ask what the role really covers, given the director title and low pay floor. To finish the review research, send a follow-up message so the search can run again with a fresh search budget.
